Job Description

The position we seek to fill is a Tax Controversy Professional. This position is responsible to manage and work tax controversy cases (i.e., disputes, negotiations, etc.). You will work with a team of professionals that manage our tax controversy case load, and will interact independently with the IRS, NJ Division of Taxation, and our clients with respect to the resolution of client cases.

You will need to have a minimum of three years in taxation, knowing your way around a tax return, and one year of tax controversy experience. We will provide training to the ideal candidate who has the requisite skills to bring your past experience and skills up to our unique standards for quality and effectiveness.

We are seeking a high energy individual who thrives in a fast-paced environment, is an enthusiastic learner with superb communication skills and someone who, like us, wants to bring our clients peace of mind.

Your (Our) Approach

We work like no other firm for which you have ever worked. We are intensely precise and thorough. There is an urgency in our attitudes and desire to serve our clients. You must adopt that precision, thoroughness and urgency to succeed here. It is essential that you are a team player and dependable. Clear communication and awareness of changing dynamics will be critical skills. The ability to be sensitive to client needs is also very important.

As intense and busy as it can be, we also enjoy the friendships we have made in the office, and appreciate the accomplishments of the entire team as well as individual successes.

You MUST be smart and quick on your feet! The ideal candidate will possess excellent computer and organizational skills. The candidate must be detail-oriented with strong analytical, written and communication skills.

Skills and Experience

The following skills are required:

- Word Processing proficiency (i.e. Word or Word Perfect)
- Advanced Excel skills
- Advanced Outlook skills for scheduling, e-mail and task management
- Excellent Computer and organizational skills
- Detail-Oriented, ability to prioritize and always meet deadlines
- Strong analytical, written and communication skills
- Exceptional professional telephone skills to deal with both clients and tax authorities
- Outstanding personal management skills
- Preparation of individual tax returns (forms 1040)
- Experience in representing clients before the Internal Revenue Service

The following skills and experience are desired, but not required:

- Advanced abilities in using QuickBooks
- Keyboarding speed of at least 60 words per minute
- Project Management skills
- Tax Research
- Experience on BNA Income Tax Planning Software
- Preparation or review of individual, corporate, partnership, and/or fiduciary tax returns
- Ability to read and understand financial statements

Having the following experience would be helpful in performing your job with our firm:

- Understanding of present value/future value concepts
- Experience on T Value Software and/or HP-12C calculator functions
- Familiarity with Scanning, Adobe, PDF management/manipulation
- Experience working for the IRS, a state tax agency, a judge, or an attorney general's office

The position requires exceptional telephone skills and a professional demeanor to deal with both clients and tax authorities. Excellent writing and communication skills are essential. Outstanding personal management skills are a must along with a great deal of judicious professional patience.

Salary Range & Benefits

Salary will be commensurate with skills and experience. This is a full-time salaried position and will include paid vacation & holidays, paid personal time/sick days, disability insurance. The firm also offers 401(k) and medical insurance options.
